Didsbury expo a 'great success'

BY TIM DENOUDSTEN
 Didsbury Review

From fashions and footwear to furniture and fencing, the 24th annual Didsbury Art, Travel & Trade Expo had something for almost everyone.

The largest trade show between Red Deer and Airdrie saw 126 exhibitors and at least 3,500 people pass through the Didsbury Memorial Complex doors on Saturday and Sunday to promote or peruse a wide variety of items and services.

"It was a great success," said Didsbury Chamber of Commerce vice-president Greg Poirier following the event. "There was quite an assortment of different businesses that came in."

For the third straight year, every booth at the show was sold out.

"The people that were presenting at the show, they said they were very happy with it, that it was as good as last year," said Poirier, who credited the promotional efforts of trade show manager Joelle Fournier.

"All of the people that get a booking for the show look forward to dealing with her every year."

Sunny skies and good weather over the course of the weekend may have had a mixed effect on trade show attendance.

"On the one hand, it's good but it might hinder you because when it gets warm enough people want to get away a bit too," noted Poirier, adding that the current economic conditions may also have had an impact on attendance numbers, which were down slightly from last year.

Among the show's events was the fashion show - which Poirier described as once again being "a big hit" - featuring clothing from a number of shops, including Didsbury's

Ulla-La Boutique and Pride of Pagoda in Carstairs.

Visitors also had the chance to sample some local cuisine as Golden River?, Didsbury Catering & Delights?, Macy's Restaurant?and JD's Restaurant all served up dishes in the Taste of Didsbury food court.

"The Taste of Didsbury has always been a very good draw for us," said Poirier. The expo was a feast for the ears as well, with a number of local bands performing on Saturday afternoon and a toe-tapping fiddlers' jamboree on Sunday.

In addition, the Polyjesters took the stage for some late-night cabaret on Saturday in support of the Didsbury Firefighters, Didsbury Preschool and the Didsbury Chamber of Commerce.

For Poirier, though, the highlight of the weekend was simply "having a very successful show and seeing all the people coming out and enjoying the show."

Dragons all-stars shine

BY TIM DENOUDSTEN
Didsbury Review

Two Didsbury High School basketball players took full advantage of a chance to showcase their skills at the South Central Zone 1A/2A All-Star Game on Wednesday, March 25.

Nikki Durstling scored 14 points and Chelsea Overwater had nine points for Girls Team West in a close 68-74 loss to Girls Team East during the game, which was played at High River's Notre Dame Collegiate.

"It was a really good experience," said Durstling, chosen as the contest's MVP, adding that she enjoyed "meeting new people and adapting to how everyone else plays and a different coach."

Durstling, who is currently finishing Grade 12, has been offered a scholarship to play for the Olds College Broncos in the fall.

"I don't know if I'm going to take that or not yet, but I probably will," she says, adding that she plans to travel to Europe this summer to play women's basketball in England and Ireland.

Didsbury Dragons head coach Chris Overwater commended Durstling's dedication and scoring prowess over the course of the past season.

"Nikki...was probably our most consistent player all year long," he said. The girl can simply put the ball in the hoop and she's extremely consistent. She's a very positive individual and very determined...on the offensive end of the floor."

Overwater also noted the defensive abilities and sheer athleticism displayed by his daughter, Chelsea.

"She has amazing athletic ability," said Overwater. "Chelsea brings a dominating presence to the inside of the key. She's a shot-blocker...She's strong, physical [and] probably the best-conditioned athlete, not only on the team, but at that [all-star] game."

Chelsea, who is also a member of the Alberta provincial women's U-19 field hockey team, initially agreed to join the basketball team this season because it was one player short of the ten needed to make a complete roster.

"For her to get an opportunity to go was also an amazing thing because it shows what you can do if you have the right attitude and you work hard," said Overwater.

The 2008-09 season marked Overwater's first time coaching the senior girls' team and, right from the start of the campaign, he established his long-term vision for the team and the basketball program at DHS.

"I challenged the girls to say this is the beginning of the development of a high school, not just your team, not just this year but the beginning of a program where in four or five years, there'll be a high quality of basketball being played," he recalled.

The selection of two players to the all-star team was "absolutely critical" to this development process and lends credibility to the basketball program, added Overwater.

Jessie Watson of Hugh Sutherland School in Carstairs was also a member of the Girls Team West all-star squad.

On the boys' side, the Boys Team West - which included Nick Perversoff and Gavin Humphrey of Cremona School as well as Braydon Nysteen of HSS - was trounced by Boys Team East 113-83.

Didsbury now officially 'Home of Stick Curling'

Council officially proclaimed the Town of Didsbury to be the "Home of Stick Curling" after receiving the approval of stick curling advocates Carson Shultz, Gary Sherman and Brian Dingman.

"Anything that's out there to promote the sport (is good)," said Shultz following council's initial proposal of the designation Mar. 10.

"What we're hoping for is lots of people playing," added Sherman.

Budget approved

Council approved a 2009 operating budget of $7.8 million and a capital budget of $3.9 million.

"Municipal property taxes [will] increase approximately $65 per year for the average single-family residence to maintain programs and service delivery at current levels," wrote town Chief Financial Officer James Reichenbacher in his report to council.

Sentence time should be time served

DAN SINGLETON

The Stelmach government has announced that it is supporting proposed changes to the Criminal Code that would end the practice of giving two-for-one credit for pre-trial time served by people convicted of crimes.

Under amendments proposed by federal Justice Minister Rob Nicholson judges would no longer have the discretion to reduce an offender's sentence based on the time he or she spends in jail while awaiting trial.

If the changes are approved, a person who spends a year in a remand centre awaiting trial and sentencing will be given one-year credit and not a day more.

While defence lawyers argue that time served in remand centres – where prisoners do not receive educational or recreational opportunities – is particularly hard time, the general public is probably a lot less sympathetic.

"Justice must be fair and accountable, but it also must send a message about what the consequences are when laws are broken and people are victimized," said Alberta Justice Minister Alison Redford.

Like elsewhere in the province, judges in Didsbury and Red Deer provincial courts routinely give accused persons two-for-one credit for time served awaiting sentencing.

And while it doesn't happen in every case, there are some offenders who probably make a conscious decision to drag out their pre-conviction proceedings so they have less overall time to serve when all is said and done.

Those delays, in turn, create backlogs in the already overburdened court system, holding up the proceedings for both the guilty and the innocent. For example, trials in both Didsbury and Red Deer courts are already being set into 2010.

"We believe the sentence you get is the sentence you should serve," says Public Security Minister Fred Lindsay. "Inmates have a greater chance of turning their lives around if they serve their true sentences and complete rehabilitation programs so they don't re-offend and re-victimize Albertans."

Perhaps would-be offenders would think twice about committing crimes if they knew they would no longer be getting the sweet two-for-one deal?

And even if ending the two-for-one system doesn't reduce overall crime levels, at least criminals would be less motivated to tie up the system with unreasonable delays.

While most offenders would probably decry the end of the two-for-one sentencing system, most law-abiding citizens would likely support a system where "the sentence you get is the sentence you serve."

Of course the courts must continue to ensure that accused persons have their cases heard within reasonable time limits.

Now the federal and provincial governments should start working together to revamp the parole system so violent offenders serve their full sentences – instead of walking free years early under mandatory release.

Letters to the editor

Ideas for Earth Hour and school zones

First, I'd like to thank you for a great little newspaper: nice and refreshing.

I came here from Calgary about 18 months ago where everything in the paper was "doom and gloom."

First I'd like to comment on the article in the March 24 edition re "Earth Hour." Town council states that they will turn off all 'non essential' lights for an hour. If they are non-essential, why can't they be turned off until the next time they are needed; that's like leaving the lights on in the bathroom, because you know you'll be back again later on in the day.

I come from Scotland, where we were taught that when you left a room, if you leave for more than three seconds before returning you are wasting electricity. So my advice to town council is to turn off all non-essential lights every day, until they are needed.

Secondly: In regards to the article about changing the school/playground signs to "Child Safety Zones" Don't you think that is going backwards? The original 'school zone' sign didn't have hours posted on it, therefore the zone was in effect from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; the newer sign with hours posted has the zone only in effect when kids are not in class. Also, are these signs not governed by the province, requiring the law to be amended?

The first time I visited my brother in Florida, I saw the best school zone system ever. All there was was a school zone sign with a flashing orange light attached. This light was only on when the zone was in effect, such a no-brainer! Personally, I learned to drive under the old signage so I still slow down when I'm in a school zone on weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The time difference is mere seconds!

Sincerely

Ian Wilson
Didsbury

Kudos to hospital staff

In appreciation of the service provided by the palliative care department at the Didsbury Hospital – Dr. Neil Smit and Dr. John LeRoux in the care of our mother – Marjorie Perkins. The doctors and staff at the hospital were especially comforting in our time of sorrow. Although she was only in their care for one day, it was the extreme care and consideration that was provided that made our mom's passing easier to bear. All staff and doctors were considerate of our feelings and I hesitate to start naming names, as I would probably omit someone who deserves recognition. This facility provides a valuable service to the community and everyone needs to be aware of the service provided by the individuals who work every day and night with very little recognition. Closure of this facility would be very unfortunate.

Thank you.

Feature

Committee helps teens to right wrongs

BY TIM DENOUDSTEN
Didsbury Review

There's no doubt about it – stealing a candy bar is a crime. However, it doesn't necessarily have to result in a potentially life-changing criminal record.

The Didsbury Youth Justice Committee's aim is to rehabilitate teens between the ages of 14 and 17 that have pleaded guilty to relatively minor offences but are looking for a fresh start.

"We do non-violent crimes, mostly break and enters, the less serious offences [such as] mischief," explains committee chairperson

Charmaine Williams, who has been a member for the past five years. "We're not doing hardened criminals here...Some of the businesses, they have a policy that no matter how much a kid steals, they get charged. One was a chocolate bar and a tin of cat food. You know, it's three dollars, but they had to charge him because that was their policy."

Although the committee sometimes gets referrals directly from the police, the majority of teens come to them through the court system.

"Once they admit their guilt, then their file gets forwarded to us," says Williams.

The diverse volunteer committee has about eight members from a variety of backgrounds, including a social worker, a geologist, small business owners and a RCMP liaison.

"The last two years we've got a good base and they're great individuals," says Williams, a legal assistant who first became involved at the suggestion of her employer, Didsbury lawyer Brian Forestell.

A panel of about three members meets at the courthouse most Mondays to meet with the teens. The format of the discussion, which usually includes either the victim or a victim impact statement, is based on the traditional sharing circle.

"Some of [the teens] find it hard to look at the victim," notes Williams. "It really gives it a human face. Instead of saying, 'I just kicked over Mrs. Smith's garbage can,' Mrs. Smith is sitting there saying, I was frightened. You came up into my yard and I heard these noises."

CHARMAINE
WILLIAMS

In addition, the victim gets a chance to hear the youth explain his or her side.

Often, the offence is not a personal attack against the victim.

"It's not 'Oh, I hate Mrs. Smith,'" says Williams. "Sometimes it is, but rarely. It gives [the victim] back some security as well."

Then, with input from the youth's parents, the committee determines appropriate Alternative Measures for the youth to make restitution – such as an apology letter or community service work – and what sort of counselling might be appropriate.

Upon successfully completing the Alternative Measures program, the youth can return to the court and have the charges dropped, allowing them to avoid receiving a criminal record.

"It gives them a chance to fix something stupid," Williams notes. "We had one who just went through that thanked us for the opportunity to correct a mistake that they'd done and really appreciated the time that we'd spent with them."

One struggle for the committee has been trying to find suitable community service placements with local businesses and organizations.

"Right now we have the town and the Didsbury Mobile Home Park, but that's kind of the only two," says Williams. "Some of [the businesses], like the hospitals, need a criminal record check. Because they're in the flux of the system, it shows that they have a pending [charge] so they can't go there."

The committee is always looking for new members, and there is a particular need for more men to come on board, says Williams.

To get involved, prospective volunteers must first pass a criminal record check and a sexual offender check.

However, the most important requirements are "compassion and understanding" and a sincere desire to help the kids, she says. "Sometimes you have to be a bit more aggressive to get something out them and sometimes you have to sit back and listen.

"We try to relate to them. Every kid that I've seen, I've related somehow to them, whether it's a boy or girl."

For Williams, the chance to make a difference in a youth's life makes it all worthwhile.

"You see them on the street and they're [saying] 'thank you, I'm in school again, I'm graduating, thank you for spending the time with me and giving me a chance to make this right,'" she says.

The Youth Justice Committee meets the first Monday of every month at 7 p.m. at the Didsbury RCMP station.

For more information about the Youth Justice Committee or to get involved, contact Charmaine Williams by leaving a message at the Didsbury RCMP Detachment at 403-335-3382.

CORRECTION

Last week's Didsbury Review article "Town tackles water waste" (p. 3) contained incorrect information about using the leak detector tablets distributed by the Town of Didsbury at the Didsbury Art, Travel & Trade Expo.

To use a tablet correctly, remove the toilet tank cover, put a tablet in the tank and wait several minutes. If colour appears in the bowl, you have a leak. The Review apologizes for the error.

Police target speeding

BY TIM DENOUDSTEN
Didsbury Review

The Alberta RCMP is stepping up its efforts in April to reduce speed-related injuries and deaths on provincial roads.

"With fatal accidents...speed is [often] a large factor," said Didsbury RCMP Cpl. Jeff Jacobson.

The initiative will focus on monitoring speed everywhere from highways to school zones using both laser speed guns and radar guns.

Police statistics show that the number of speed-related collisions usually spikes in April.

Speed Facts:

- Speed limits indicate the maximum speed permitted under ideal conditions.

Unless otherwise posted, speed limits in Alberta are:

100 km/h on a primary highway outside an urban area

80 km/h on non-primary highways outside an urban area

50 km/h on highways within an urban area

40 km/h in school zones and playground areas outside an urban area

30 km/h in school zones and playground areas within an urban area

- Travelling at a speed that is unsafe given the weather and road conditions is illegal.

- Fines are doubled for speeding past emergency vehicles or construction crews.

- In 2008, almost one of every four fatal car crashes involved driving at a speed unsafe for road conditions.
